VITALE BARBERIS CANONICO

1663

It is one of the oldest woolen mills, a place of craftsmanship that is producing the finest fabrics for 354 years. Located about 50 miles north to Milan in the northern Biella region. Vitale Barberis Canonico continues to remain true to its origins and by creatively renewing itself over time.

Fabrics from the company's historical archives, by way of the men, timeless icons, who have worn them over the centuries. What emerges is a distinctive portrait of the eclectic style Vitale Barberis Canonico has been able to preserve over the generations.

The mill gets its raw material from the best breeders in the world and then woven into the most exquisite fabrics ranging from Super 110s-best-selling quality that traditional style and elegance a unique degree of wearability.

All Vitale Barberis Canonico fabrics from this range are textured in such a way to make them suitable for year-round wear and are woven in timeless classic designs. And the Super 150s range is made entirely from 16.2 micron wool, which can only be produced from just a handful of regions in Australia.

The top quality of Reda fabrics is produced by a carefully controlled process and an inexhaustible endeavor to perfect the yarn. The journey of their textile starts in New Zealand, where the best sheep are raised for the production of the finest Merino wools. For the finishing of fabric, it undergoes a series of treatments aimed at improving the stability, appearance and the softness of the product.

Afterwards, a light product is achieved, specially of Reda suit fabric that is pleasant to the touch because its is remarkably soft and also elastic and resistant, destined to the high fashion of classic men's apparel. Reda excels due to the high level of its production, the fruit of more than a century and is considered a synonym of quality, luxury and taste throughout the world.

Lanificio Zignone produces the finest quality fabrics and pairs up prestigious traditions with innovative finishes and high-performing materials throughout the manufacturing chain located exclusively in Biella. Every season the design team at Zignone releases a new collection interpreting new fashion trends in line with Italian artistry and style.

For more than half a century, behind the wool mill in Strone at the foot of the Belles Alps, fabrics with a contemporary appeal have been developed and reserved for the top international men's formal clothing brands. The Zignone collections combine classics styles and future trends, time-honored skills and technical research to deliver high quality made in Italy products.

The history of Zignone began in 1964 when Gilio Zignone became a flannel producer, launching the Lanificio Mucrone. In 1968, with the transfer to the strone production plant, the world mill was officially named after its founder. The innovation continued in the years up to 2001, when Lanificio Zignone also endowed itself with the finishing phase, so as to be in control of the whole process.

Soft touch, highly valued fabrics, exclusive finishes. Only precious Australian wool and the finest cashmere from Mongolia are woven to create Fratelli Tallia di Delfino collections. Ancient combines with innovative technology to produce refined fabrics that are water-repellent, crease-resistant and antibacterial.

In an age of steeped in an ancient weaving tradition where pristine waters flow, the Fratelli Tallia di Delfino wool mill came into being in 1903. The world-renowned brand is highly regarded for its high-end menswear fabric and recognized worldwide for its mastery in the production of the finest luxury men.

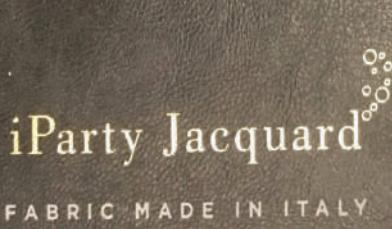

Lanificio di Subalpino embodies classic Italian menswear fabrics, it is a small textile mill in the heart of Biella and the textile mill has been a family story since 1940. The Generations have shared the same values and a deep sense of details to create unique creations. The Subalpino team is working together to produce the best quality in terms of fabrics and new innovative designs. Their products range from fabrics for jackets, trousers, coats, and accessories like Prince of Wales, tartan, stripes, check, micro-structures in wool, cotton, wool and linen, cotton and stretch fabrics. Lanificio di Subalpino is also known for producing Eco-Friendly fabrics with interesting qualities.

From the mid-eighteenth century in the municipal lists of Biella was placed the name of the Cerruti family, under the heading “Arti et Negotij”, this name was used to identify the manufacturers or producers of fabrics. In 1881 Antonio Cerruti together with his two brothers and a cousin founded the company. Their declared goal was to concentrate “in the production of innovative and quality fabrics”. The success was not long awaiting and within a few years, the company was expanded, with the most modern spinning and weaving machinery and large electrically illuminated halls.

In 1951, the company was taken over by Nino Cerruti, who despite being in his twenties, immediately demonstrated an aesthetic sensibility that lead him to become an icon of fashion all over the world. Nino Invested his time and his energy over the years in the research and development of materials, adding a certain taste, sensitivity and a unique personality with an attention to design.

All thanks to a complete production process where technology, maximum quality, and respect for the environment are combined the cerruti wool mill created high-quality products in direction of perfection.

TESSUTI
di SONDARIO

Tessuti di Sondrio began its production during the second half of the nineteenth century in northern Italy. Its business and know-how matured constantly over 120 years of textile history, reflecting a great authentic passion for the world of fabrics.

The Tessuti di Sondrio research actively aims to create new processes and finished. The success of this activity lead to the innovation of processed that allow the company to achieve extremely high levels of quality in the various stages of processing. Finishing is one of the production steps in which the innovative contribution reaches its maximum expression. Fabrics that range from classic finishes to surprising experiments: an evolution of classic cotton, they amaze and satisfy different tasted of fabrics.

“A fixed idea, a goal to be achieved without compromise: quality for Piacenza comes first. In raw materials. In the manufacturing process, in the fabrics and in the items of clothing produced. Every thread always symbolises quality.” This is the most important thread in the history of the Fratelli Piacenza company. A history, a culture and a tradition has lasted for 280 years.

The high quality of the waters of the Biella territory and consolidated expertise are fundamental for the processing and producing of Fratelli Piacenza fabrics. The meticulous selection of superfine wools with carefully limited production and the best noble fibers are combined with the evolved production to maximize the natural characteristics of the fabrics with valuable blends or special finishes.

The fabrics meets sensitivity to create the most suitable treatments that enhance the fabric quality. The technical know-how make the difference and in this case transforms into the ability to choose the best. The thistle flower is the protagonist of one of the finishing testaments: the raised effect, applied in specific cases.

This flower represents the identity of Fratelli Piacenza.

Bottoli

Lanificio Bottoli is a company of Venetian (from Venice) origin founded in 1861, now in its fourth generation. It is the only wool mill in the world to produce ecological fabrics of raw, untinted wool, entirely in Italy. The fleece of the sheep is used in its natural colours, without any colouring or dye.

The continuous research and innovation of the product combine the ancient Italian craftsmanship tradition, a direct legacy of an ancient knowledge that for centuries has pursued excellence as its primary objective. Today Lane Bottoli is one of the most famous Made in Italy fabric producers in the world.

The origins of Lanificio Fratelli Ormezzano date back to 1924 when Mario and Carlo Ormezzano founded it is Mosso valley, in the province of Biella. They had a clear vision: to change the way the worsted wool yarn is processed, to produce innovative fabrics for men's clothing. The company has grown through the generations, constantly evolving the original concept until the beginning of the '70's, when Lanificio Fratelli Ormezzano tested and introduced in the production the yarns of linen and cotton. This steps represented an important turning point in which the new project was perfectly integrated with the historical one, thus consolidating the Lanificio Fratelli Ormezzano label.

The commitment to research, technical development and creativity influence the traditional excellence of fabrics and historical techniques. Among a range of products by Lanificio Fratelli Ormezzano one can find wool and cashmere blends for winter jackets and coats, and natural linens, yarn dyed linen, cotton and wool blends for summer clothes.

The list cannot be finished without mentioning the exclusive super-twisted super 150's wool.
